The will of the late Katherine Bruyn Forsyth of this city has been filed with Surrogate Kaufman for probate and a citation issued, returnable February 7. Ralph K. Forsyth and Judge Joseph M. Fowler are executors and trustees with power to sell portions of the estate if they deem it necessary.

The will, dated June 26, 1925, and witnessed by Judge Joseph M. Fowler and J. Edward Conway, directs the disposition of the estate and provides for a number of bequests. The residence property at Pearl and Fair streets is given for use of Ralph K. In such event the residence property may be purchased by an association organized to preserve and care for articles of local historic value and to stimulate interest in and appreciation of the history of Ulster county, for the sum of $10,000 to be paid into the estate. The will provides that if no such historical society exists, that the property then may be sold and the proceeds become part of the personal estate.

After directing that all just debts and expenses be paid, the executors are directed to obtain a contract with the Wiltwyck Cemetery Association for the care of the family plot in the cemetery and the executors are authorized to bequeath to the Cemetery Association such amount as may be necessary to insure the proper care of the plot.

Certain articles of furniture, jewelery and chattle property are entrusted to the executors to deliver to persons as specified in a memorandum given the executors or to be found among papers of deceased.

Forsyth to have and occupy same as an actual home for himself so long as he wishes. If said Ralph K. Forsyth ceases to occupy the same as a home and in the event of his death the executors and trustees are directed to take possession of the said residence property and after one year they shall dispose of the same by sale and conveyance as follows:

Should within one year there be in existence a legally organized and active membership corporation known as the Ulster County Historical Society, the name not being material so long as its purposes are "to preserve and care for articles of local historical value and the stimulation of interest in and appreciation of the history of Ulster county" then in that event the executors and trustees shall convey the property to the said corporation if it wishes to purchase for the sum of $10,000 to be paid to the estate. If there be no such organization or in the event it does not wish to purchase as provided in the will then the executors and trustees shall sell the residence property and the proceeds become a part of the personal estate.

All real estate owned by deceased or interest in real estate is given to Ralph K. Forsyth, except the residence property as before mentioned.

The Residuary Estate.

All the rest, residue and remainder of the property, real and personal, is held in trust by the executors for Ralph K. Forsyth, the income to be paid to him during his lifetime and in the event that the trustees deem it necessary, a portion of the principal may be applied to his support. At the death of Ralph K. Forsyth the trust terminates and all property shall be given to his issue, provided there be any, and if not, to Julia Little Faulkner, Mary L. Holt-Smith, Pauline Little, Anna M. Sent Young Son To Beg on Street

Ten-Year-Old Boy Tells Police Mother Sent Him Out Begging as His Father Was Without Work—Other Boys Also Become Beggars.

A ten-year-old boy was brought into police headquarters Monday evening with fifty-nine cents in his possession which he said he had obtained by begging on the street. Questioned as to why he was begging, he said his mother had sent him out on the street as his father was without work. The boy also said that his fourteen-year-old brother was also engaged in begging.

Business had not been very good for the ten-year-old boy, for after several hours' work all he had collected was fifty-nine cents. He also gave the police the names of several other boys who he said were engaged in street begging.

The young lad was taken home by the police and his parents warned that the next time the lad was caught begging not only would he be arrested but the parents also.

Did He Hit Her With Xmas Tree?

Mike Buboltz and His Wife Arrested, He Charged With Using Tree as a Weapon, and She With Using Her Teeth—Hearing Adjourned.

That a Christmas tree may be used to emphasize more than the holiday spirit was brought to the attention of Judge Shufeldt in police court today when Michael Buboltz and his wife were arraigned before him on charges of assault, and the hearing in both cases were adjourned for three weeks.

According to the story told Judge Shufeldt by a young woman who swore out a warrant for Mike's arrest, she had taken down the Christmas tree in her home on New Year's morning and thrown it out in the yard. Some time later Mike came along and picking up the tree he hurled it on her porch with the remark that she had better keep it out of the road.

She threw the tree off the porch back to its original lodging place and Mike, picking it up and using it as a club, ran after her and struck her about the head and shoulders.

During the rumpus Mrs. Buboltz came on the scene and the woman's sister was also attracted to the scene of the affray, and she claimed that Mrs. Buboltz grasped her by the clothing and hurled her to the ground, tearing her clothing, that while she was lying on the ground Mrs. Buboltz knelt over her and bit her in the hand. She displayed the imprint of teeth on her hand to Judge Shufeldt Monday when she obtained the warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Buboltz.

LOST BOY WAS A COUSIN, MOTHER'S HOPES SHATTERED.

Truro, N. S., Jan. 4 (AP).—Hopes of an eighty-year-old mother for a reunion with her son, who sailed away 30 years ago never to return, were shattered today with announcement that a man who believed he was Frank Burgess, the lost boy, was instead a cousin.

The returning seaman appeared Sunday night and said the effect of a blow on his head a few days ago had restored his memory, lost 30 years ago, after an attack by thugs. He could now recall having sailed from Santsport, N. S., when a lad of 15, he said.

But yesterday Arthur Burgess, a brother of Frank, identified the man as Lewis Burgess, a cousin, of Bridgeport, Conn.

The mother said her son had been reported dead from Gibraltar thirty years ago and his effects sent to her.

The prisoner denied he was Olson and claimed to be Frank Jackson, 20 years old, a native of Boston. He declared he was making his way from Baltimore to Harrisburg to obtain work in a planing mill when arrested near Newfreedom, Pa.

The suspect is said to bear a marked resemblance to photographs of the missing Olson. He was arrested on information furnished by an insurance man, at whose home the youth called to beg a meal.

RECOMMEND IMPROVEMENTS AT BEDFORD REFORMATORY

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Eight cottages at the state reformatory for women at Bedford Hills have faulty window guards, permitting easy escape, the state commission of prisons declared in a report issued today.

The approved personnel of the institution does not permit employment of matrons at night so that "proper window guards are absolutely necessary," the report said. The cost is estimated at $20,000.

The report also found that only $100 is provided annually for use on walks and grounds, asserting that $5,000 is needed for the purpose. Roads, walks and terraces are in poor condition, the report explained.

Shell House at Brewster Powder Plant Destroyed

Building, Built of Tile, Housed Considerable Machinery and Is Total Loss—Fire Discovered by Night Men at Plant, and Also West Shore Engineer.

Fire in the shell house at the powder plant of F. K. Brewster, Inc., located just outside of the village of Port Ewen, was discovered about 2 o'clock this morning by the night men at the plant who promptly stretched fire hose and proceeded to battle the flames. The fire was also seen by the engineer of a northbound West Shore freight train and he promptly blew the engine whistle for the entire distance between the plant and the Port Ewen station.

The Port Ewen Fire department responded to the alarm, but when they reached the scene found their services were not needed and returned home.

There are three men employed at the plant nights and after stretching the lines of fire hose on the flames they proceeded to telephone to employes of the company who hastened to the scene.

The building in which the fire broke out is of tile construction and housed considerable machinery. There were no explosives in the building which is a total loss.

All of the buildings of the powder plant are widely scattered as a matter of fire safety.

Dunmore Slated For Floor Leader

Speaker McGinnies Believed to be Convinced That Russell G. Dunmore is Logical Man for Republican Floor Leader—Two Drys Dispute Claim.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Russell G. Dunmore of Oneida county is slated to be the next Republican floor leader in the assembly.

Soon after his arrival last night, Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies announced that if he is re-elected as a result of the Republican caucus tonight he would appoint a floor leader satisfactory to ninety per cent of the Republicans in the assembly. This was taken to mean the virtual selection of Assemblyman Dunmore to fill the place made vacant by Simon L. Adler of Rochester, who did not seek re-election.

Assemblyman Dunmore's claim to the post was disputed by only two others, Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks, a dry, of Broome, and Assemblyman Edmund F. Cooke, a dry, of Erie. Assemblyman Jenks is reported as declaring that the Republicans of New York will "find out that the drys mean business", and pointing to his dry record and seniority as qualifications. Speaker McGinnies, after conferences last night, is believed to be convinced that Assemblyman Dunmore is the logical man.

Fred A. Bradley, Republican leader of Buffalo, was expected here today to press the claims of Assemblyman Cooke, but it is believed the visit is only a gesture intended to gain a last minute victory.

The legislature convenes at noon tomorrow to hear the annual message of Governor Smith, which will not be read this year by the Executive. The governor said yesterday that he does not want to overtax his throat.

FEELS UNDER MORAL OBLIGATION TO BULLOCK

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Governor Alfred E. Smith told newspaper correspondents at the Capitol today that he felt under moral obligation to William F. Bullock, head of the bureau of research of the Republican state committee, whose investigations made the New York city milk supply one of the issues of the last campaign. In the course of a conversation on the milk issue, one of the correspondents said jokingly that he understood Bullock was on the governor's payroll.

"No, I am not paying his salary," Governor Smith said, "but I do feel that I am under moral obligation to do something for him."

Admits Killing Mother-in-Law

Because She Threatened To Cause Her Daughter to Start Divorce Proceedings—Slayer Trapped By Button and Lock of Hair.

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP)—Trapped by a coat button and a lock of his hair, Harold E. Webster, 26, today confessed to the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Gallaway, 45, who was found yesterday with her skull crushed at the home of another son-in-law, Dr. Dell C. Bassett, at Hempstead.

District Attorney Edwards announced the confession after Webster had been questioned for six hours. Mr. Edwards said Webster admitted he killed Mrs Gallaway because she had threatened to cause her daughter, Mrs Blanche Webster, to start divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Webster collapsed when told of her husband's confession.

A letter written by Webster to his mother after he confessed was made public by the district attorney. It read:

"I have gone far enough in regard to this murder. Please, dear ma, tell them everything I have told you. Also please give them the blue trousers and anything else you might have that bears blood stains. Please forgive me and don't worry. So far they have treated me fine."

A few strands of hair, torn out by the roots and a button found in the still warm hand of the dead woman led to the arrest of Webster on a charge of first degree murder. The hair was said by the district attorney to "correspond" with that of Webster. The button was said to be "a perfect match" for others on Webster's sack coat.

SAME OLD BUNK, SAYS GOVERNOR SMITH

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Governor Smith commented in characteristic Smith fashion today on the statement of Charles D. Hilles, national Republican committeeman from New York and chairman of the executive committee of the Republican state committee, regarding the governor's political future.

"Every new chairman of the executive committee of the Republican State Committee is entitled to a pipe dream as early in January as he can get it," the governor said.

"Bunk, the same old bunk," was the governor's comment on Mr. Hilles's assertion that Governor Smith's fourth term was a stepping stone for the presidential nomination. "Somebody wrote that for him and he just stuck it in," said the governor.

DECLARES EDISON SLEEPS EIGHT HOURS OR MORE.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 4 (AP).—Thomas A. Edison dozes if he doesn't get eight hours of sleep.

So says Dr. H. M. Johnson, of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, whose experiments on the subject of sleep have convinced him toxins made muscular fatigue act as stimulants to the nervous system, including the brain.

"Mr. Edison sleeps eight hours a night or more," Dr. Johnson said, terming a myth the story that Edison sleeps only four hours each night. "When he doesn't get that much he doses in his chair the next day. That legend has been a standing joke among his associates. Harvey Firestone always gets a good laugh out of it".

EARLE'S FOURTH WIFE GRANTED A DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Jan. 4 (AP).—Another chapter in the stormy marital life of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, artist, motion picture director and poet, was closed with the granting of a divorce here yesterday to Charlotte Kristine Earle, his fourth wife.

Although Earle filed an answer to his wife's complaint and declared he would contest it, he failed to appear when the case was called for trial.

Mrs. Earle accused her husband of beating her and, on one occasion within a year or two of their marriage in 1915, stabbing her with a pair of scissors in a fit of rage. She was awarded custody of their small son.

Compare Smith And Coolidge

Kansas Editor in Public Address Compares Coolidge and Smith—World Says Smith's Friends Frown Upon Early Boom.

New York, Jan. 4 (AP).—Presidential politics continued today to create a stir.

Reports that some supporters of Governor Alfred E. Smith were making an active drive for delegates to the Democratic convention were followed by a Republican spokesman's statement belittling Smith's power as a vote getter. This statement came from Charles D. Hilles, Republican state chairman and national vice-chairman.

The New York World, ardent supporter of Governor Smith, said that the governor's closest friends were frowning upon efforts to get his boom off to an early start, regarding such steps as ill advised and likely to hurt his chances.

William Allen White of Emporia, Kansas, in a public address compared Smith and Coolidge. The Kansas editor was asked during an address before the forum of the Jewish Center in Brooklyn whether if Al Smith went down to Washington, there would have to be a change in the attitude of the government toward big business?

"'You have the cart before the horse,' Mr. White answered. 'There will have to be a change in the attitude toward big business before Al Smith can ever go to Washington. Personally I consider that Al Smith represents the biggest, best, keenest and cleanest brain in American public life today—and I am a Republican.'"

Mr. White spoke on "Coolidge and the changing times." He declared President Coolidge to be "as much of a mystic as any other New Englander ever has been, and even Emerson, and his mysticism is that he believes that, given prosperity, justice will come as a by-produce."

The speaker said he thought the President to be the typical leader of the new era, in which prosperity is the chief end of mankind."

Tax Resolutions To Be Introduced

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Two resolutions designed to ease the tax burden will be introduced at the opening of the New York legislature tomorrow by Assemblyman Bert Lord, Republican, of Chenango. One resolution will call for the return to the real estate taxpayers of $20,700,000 levied by the state on real estate last year and the other will ask for the elimination of the direct state tax in 1927.

Mr. Lord said that the report of the comptroller showed a surplus of $26,000,000 in the state treasury, indicating that the state tax of $20,700,000 levied on real estate last year was not necessary and should be returned to the taxpayers, and that no direct state tax should be levied this year.

At this meeting the Chamber will have as speaker, Harry Collins Spillman who is the educational director of the Remington Typewriter Company.

Mr. Spillman, because of his abundant knowledge of those things necessary for a complete community life, is much in demand as a public speaker. NO SIGN OF PEACE IN TACNA-ARICA DISPUTE

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 4 (AP).—An intimation that Peru will refuse to accept Secretary of State Kellogg's proposal in the Tacna-Arica controversy is seen in a New Year's message from President Leguia, published prominently by La Nacion.

Secretary Kellogg proposed that Peru and Chile end their dispute over the sovereignty of the provinces by ceding them to Bolivia. The Peruvian President's message to La Nacion says:

"I hope that this year of 1927 will bring the so much desired solution, although it appears yet very far away. I say this because the ideal formula destined to settle this serious matter, maintaining peace in America, is not that formula of convenience which proposes to substitute for money the claims of right, but another one which should be more in conformity with the spirit of our times and the mentality of our race, which subordinates the petty commercial ambitions to the superior ideals of justice and honor."

BLUEJACKETS TO ACT AS MAIDS TO DUCHESS

Portsmouth, England, Jan. 4 (AP).—Bluejackets will act as maids to the Duchess of York and her two ladies in waiting when the battle cruiser Renown leaves here Thursday with the Duke of York for his tour of New Zealand and Australia.

As women ordinarily are barred on warships, the present voyage will set a precedent in the British navy.

The Duchess's two travelling companions will be the Countess of Cavan and the Hon. Mrs. John Gilmour, and there will be no female servants to look after their wants as the admiralty has decided that sailor jack, handy man that he is, is very well qualified to run things as they should be run on the high seas. This even includes hairdressing. Maybe if Eden Sharne takes a special course to qualify for this particular job.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

WEDDING RINGS, STIES

IF YOU want to cure a sty just take a wedding ring—your own or a friend's will do—and holding the ring in your fingers reach your left hand around over your head and rub the sty with the ring. The writer stumbled upon this superstition the other day. A domestic in the family had a sty. A neighbor told her, "Oh, that's easy enough to cure," loaned her the necessary wedding ring and showed her how to work the charm. The next day the sty was better and rapidly disappeared, thus making another convert to the magic folklore of the ancients.

Upon inquiry this sty cure was found to be a common superstition. The basis of the superstition is, evidently, that very old magic symbolism which is attached to the ring and which has been variously explained by many learned writers, but never quite satisfactorily. Possibly some of the explanations given are correct but it looks as if primitive man had something in the "back of his mind" with regard to the ring which has been lost to his descendants. "For who hath known the ways of time or trodden behind his feet?"

That the most sacred sort of a ring to us moderns is a wedding ring explains why in curing the sty a wedding ring should be used. There is more than a hint of sun worship in the superstition under consideration in that the wedding ring is of gold, the color of the sun and round like the sun's disc. Also the taking of the ring in the left hand, and the movement of the hand over the head from left to right, or sunwise—the "ceremonial circuit"—emphasizes the sun "motif" in the "cure." There is a lonely obelisk in Central park whose gilded apex still catches and reflects the morning light as it did when it stood before the temple of Ra at Heliopolis and sent back the beams of the rising day across the desert sands while within the fane the priests, moving in the "ceremonial circuit," adored their god. From Heliopolis in 3000 B. C. to these United States! It is a "far cry"; and a long journey has the old obelisk made through the centuries and across the seas! Yet if that granite mass were sentient would it not think that the old gods were not entirely dead when beneath it walks some nursery maid telling her companion how she had cured her sty by using a wedding ring in the "ceremonial circuit"?

FOR THE GOOSE—

YOU never make as much noise over savin' ten dollars as you do over losin' one.

Men like them nice, homelike restaurants where you get a lotta good, table-d'hote for your money. Women pretend to.

In the house where the Victrola needle works all day long, the darnin' needle gets rusty.

FOR THE GANDER—

If two people shares a piece of good luck, it draws them closer. But not as close as if they shared a danger.

If you've been diggin' pits for other people you mustn't go to sleep near them for fear of rollin' in.

What would you think of anybody that kidded you as often as you kid yourself?

Architecture is the most ancient of the fine arts. The earliest dated architectural remains are those of the Babylonians, from as far back as 4000 B. C. Their building material was brick, and they were the first to construct vaults and arches.

Hunter Rides Deer Two Miles in Bush

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—To ride two miles through the bush on a deer's back is the thrilling experience narrated by Eugene Guzzo, 582 Albert street, West, who has just returned from a hunt at Goulais bay.

"We were walking along a trail not far from Goulais bay, Guzzo said, "when we saw a deer lying under a tree. At first we thought it was dead. On going close to it, it did not stir, and then we decided to roll it over.

"I got hold of it by the horns. Immediately the deer jumped up, with me on top as though I was riding horseback. The deer gave me a merry ride for two miles."

ANCIENT MAPS HOBBY OF NOTED MANITOBAN SAVANT

In His Mammoth Collection Is the First in Which the Discoveries of Columbus Appear.

Winnipeg, Man.—Not to be outdone by St. John's college here, which boasts of a collection of ancient books, many of them dating back to 1500, Dr. Charles N. Bell claims to have the most complete set of ancient maps outside the walls of a historical museum.

Doctor Bell's collection of maps has a continent-wide distinction, one of Labrador having been consulted by authorities in connection with the privy council hearing in London concerning the ownership of that bleak country.

Perhaps the most curious map in the collection is a reproduction of the first map of the world in which America is represented. This map, drafted by the old Spanish cartographer, Juan de la Cosa, in 1500, eight years after Columbus discovered the New world, is a remarkable reproduction. It is in sections, upon which an attempt was made to represent forests, beasts, birds, boats, etc., in order that it might be a compendium of general description as well as a chart of distance and locality.

The oldest original map in the collection is an Ortelius of 1570, representing the earth. The existence of the north and south continents of America was then known, of course, but cartographers were a little vague about the shape of South America. In the old Ortelius map it is shaped and tinted like an orange. Dolphins sport in mid-Atlantic, with here and there a caravel; all the physical features are named in Latin.

Coming down the centuries, there are, to mention only a few: An original map illustrating Capt. John Monck's voyage to the Hudson bay in 1619-20; a "Map or General Carte of the World," drafted in 1680 and dedicated to King Charles II; a "Map of the North Pole and Parts Adjoining," drawn in 1680, dedicated to the Earl of Plymouth; maps of the Great Lakes and Michillimackinac forts, 1744.

Sisters Wed Brothers; Two Pastors for Service

New York.—Cupid worked overtime at his knot-tying job at six o'clock in Bronx Falls, N. J. In St. Peter's church two clergymen simultaneously married two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Stuart to two sons of Mrs. William Sayre, all of Bronx Falls. Everything about the weddings was in duplicate; there were two sets of bridesmaids, two best men, two maids of honor and two tables at the postnuptial supper.

The brides, the Misses Anne Morgan and Lee Stuart, are daughters of Francis Lee Stuart, formerly chief engineer of the Erie railroad and a consulting engineer of the Hudson river bridge. The Stuarts are Southerners by descent, but have lived in Bronx Falls many years. The Sayre family have been close friends of the Stuarts many years. William Sayre, the grandfather of the bridegroom, was president of the Lehigh Valley railroad.

Refusal of Banks To Make Loans on Bonus Stirs Vets

Treasury Is Confident That Banking Institutions Will Make Loans on Soldiers' Bonus Certificates, When They Realize They Are Taking No Chance.

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP).—Widespread refusal of banks to make loans on soldiers' bonus certificates which acquired a loan value for the first time January 1 has stirred up a small sized rebellion in veterans' ranks and plans for relief have already been laid on the doorstep of Congress.

Meanwhile, the Treasury with $48,000,000 in its adjusted service certificate fund as a pledge to certificates having a loan value of approximately $200,000,000, is confident that banking institutions will make such loans when they realize there is no chance for them to lose in these transactions.

Reports to the veterans' bureau, which, under the law, must make all unpaid loans good to the banks, indicate that that about one half of the banks are accepting the insurance bonus certificates as security for loans, while news dispatches from large cities show a tendency on the part of the financial houses to treat only with those veterans who have banking relations with them.

Secretary Mellon and Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau, have called attention to the sound security represented in the certificates, but this has not deterred the Veterans of Foreign Wars from taking up the budget for direct loans by the veterans' bureau. Edward S. Beteleim, who suggested the plan to Chairman Johnson of the House Veterans' Committee, was referred to the ways and means committee of that body.

While he had not given such an idea any thought, Secretary Mellon, in an offhand opinion, expressed apprehension over putting the government in the banking business. Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, agreed with the Treasury head that the banks soon would give greater recognition to the certificates.

The question already has received brief attention in the House, Representative Fish, Republican, New York, charging that the banks were attempting to "discredit Congress" by refusing to make loans, and Representative Wingo, Democrat, asserting it was unfair to assume that all banks were in league to withhold recognition to the former service men in this manner.

Mrs. Cook was seriously burned when she went to the upper story in an attempt to save her son and was forced to leap from a window. Two younger children escaped.

The fire started from an explosion of a lantern.

Pinchot Assails Vare Nomination

Charging That It was Partly Bought and Partly Stolen—Also Attacks "Mellon and Mitten Machines."

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP).—Charges that Senator-Elect William S. Vare's Republican nomination for that office was "partly bought and partly stolen," were made by Governor Gifford Pinchot in his final message to the Pennsylvania Legislature today. The "Mellon machine in Pittsburgh," and the "Mitten machine" also were assailed by the governor.

Declaring that he had refused to support Vare in the elections for that reason, Governor Pinchot said. "I have no doubt that Vare deserves to be and will be excluded from the Senate, but whether he is or not the mere fact that a senator-elect from Pennsylvania is in danger of losing his seat because of scandalous expenditures in the primary and notorious cheating in the election, is a bitter disgrace to this community."

Governor Pinchot opposed Senator-elect Vare and Senator George Wharton Pepper in the primaries, Vare gaining the nomination by votes rolled up in Philadelphia, his home.

Attacks "Monied Interests."

Part of the governor's message was directed at the "great monied interests" he saw controlling Pennsylvania's political life, and a defense of the primary system. Two "political machines," the Mellon machine in Pittsburgh and the Mitten machine in Philadelphia," he said, "spread their black, hawklike shadows over the community borne on the wings of eminent respectability and organized crime."

"For many years," the governor said, "the politics of this state have been run as a part of the business of interests. What these interests buy is non-interference, extortionate rates allowed public utilities, and other special privileges for themselves at the expense of the people. They give the orders, and the men who take the orders are the political bosses whose names we see in the papers every day. The real purpose of every regular political machine is the advantage of the interests which maintain it.

The Politicians.

"To operate successfully, every machine must have behind it two different kinds of people. First of all, it must have a body of politicians able and willing to deliver, for value received, the control of government, the unrighteous favors, and the unfair protection for the sake of which the magnates are in politics, politicians able and willing to do these things must be corrupt.

"Hence any such machine must include a body of the lowest politicians, such for example as the Mellon machine in Pittsburgh and the Mitten machine in Philadelphia actually do control—men who depend for their living and their power on liquor, crime and vice. These are the men the magnates buy with valuable considerations and from time to time protect against the revolt of honest citizens who would otherwise destroy them.

The Business Wing.

"This is one wing of the machine. The other consists of men who are so tied in with the business organization of the magnates that they profit from the existence of the machine; partly of business men who are held in fear because of their loans and credits; partly of the generally decent citizens (of whom there are many) who follow the magnates because they assume that if a man is rich enough he can do no wrong; partly of persons who cannot resist the craving to stand well with those in power, and partly of such of the ostensibly respectable elements of the community as are willing (in Pittsburgh, for example), to shut their eyes and make common cause with gangsters, vote thieves, dive keepers, criminals and harlots, because of the social and financial eminence of the Mellon name."

Governor Pinchot made four recommendations, appointment of fiscal officers, abolition of the internal affairs department, revision of insurance laws, and building of a new executive mansion.

CRITICIZES COOLIDGE FOR "LECTURING TO PRESS."

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP).—President Coolidge was criticised in the senate today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, for what he termed "a lecture to the press for its criticism of the President's foreign policy."

The senator said he had been unable to determine what this country's foreign policy is, but "it is not a wise thing to attempt to muzzle the press or retard its discussion of the foreign policy."

The reference was to a recent White House utterance in which the President was represented as feeling that the government was being handicapped in foreign affairs because of the attitude of some American newspapers.

FARM HAND MURDERED AT LITTLE VALLEY

Little Valley, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—After the fatal shooting of Andy Cuvelier, hired man on a farm near here, Mike Chanowitz, another hired man on the same farm, was held here today pending investigation.

Cuvelier's body was found in a hayground on the farm last night, a bullet hole through his head, after a search prompted by a chance remark of Chanowitz to Deputy Sheriff Alfred Finger.

The order department of D. Hasbrouck has filled the following orders the past few weeks: Some more Dalmatia for the Joseph Ferst Packing Company, Tuxedo; for Samuel Wiper's Motorcycle Shop, and 15 Gold Dustpans for the Valley Judges Football Association.

Gould Challenges Power of Senate

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP).—Counsel for Senator Gould, Republican, Maine, today challenged the authority of the senate to investigate charges growing out of an alleged payment to a Canadian official in connection with a railroad contract fourteen years ago.

In ordering the investigation the senate relied on the constitutional provision making it the judge of the "qualifications" of its own members. Counsel for the new Maine senator contended, however, that in going into an incident which occurred long ago, and which had been widely discussed during the campaign resulting in Gould's election, the senate was putting too broad a construction on its constitutional powers.

The issue will be hotly contested, particularly in view of its possible application to the prospective contests over the seating of Senators-elect Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania, who are charged with excessive campaign expenditures.

Senator Gould's challenge of the authority of his colleagues was laid before an elections subcommittee as soon as it convened today to begin hearings.

Income tax and customs receipts, flowing in during the last quarter in increasing amounts, accounted for most of the excess.

During the year ending December 31 the treasury reduced the public debt by $1,173,804,301 to a total of $19,074,665,337. Of the reduction $314,353,900 was accomplished during the last month.

Customs receipts for the first six months of the present fiscal year amounted to $319,417,657 compared with $322,681,815 a year ago. Market for Fruit And Vegetables

New York, Jan. 4 (AP).—The wholesale market was generally dull with a weak feeling evident on both old and new crop white cabbage. State bulk stock was in fair supply and jobbed out principally on the basis of $28 @ $30 per ton. Florida offerings packed in 48 quart hampers sold mainly at $1.50 @ $1.75. Last week's receipts of cabbage on New York city's wholesale market totalled 98 cars. Of that amount this state furnished 64 cars. Florida four cars, while the equivalent of 30 cars were imported from Holland.

Despite limited trading on white potatoes there was no change in values. Moderate supplies were on hand at various terminals. Upstate round whites in 150 pound sacks peddled out at $4 @ $4.15 and the best offerings in bulk, per 150 pounds, sold $4.75 @ $5.

Although receipts of barreled apples were lighter, demand was less active and the market in general was dull except on strictly fancy fruit. At the Barclay street pier western New York grade A 2½ inch Rhode Island greenings jobbed out mostly at $3.00 @ $3.50 per barrel. One lot extra fancy commanded $4.25 and some ordinary sold down to $2.75. Baldwins ranged from $2.50 @ $3.25, depending upon the color and quality.

Onion receipts were moderate. Early morning trading was limited and the market as a whole rather dull. The best yellows from the western part of the state seldom showed quality attractive enough to secure $3.50 per hundred pound sack. On the other hand more business on Orange county shipments was reported around $3.00.

A GRAVE MATTER

The increase of deaths from poisoned alcohol is a grave matter. There are said to have been 400 such deaths during the year in New York city alone, and it is asserted that the total of deaths from alcoholism now exceeds the total in the days of the saloon. Authorities of the Anti-Saloon League contend that it is the business of the health departments to prevent the sale of poisoned liquor, pointing out also that the public has been duly warned of the poisonous character of "most so-called liquor" Chief Medical Officer Charles W Norris, on the other hand, contends that the Government chemists should not put poison in alcohol and asserts that, in spite of evasive explanations, they are doing so. Dr. Norris is thus quoted.

The Government knows it is not stopping drinking by putting poison in alcohol It knows what the bootleggers are doing with it, and yet it continues its poisoning processes, heedless of the fact that people determined to drink are daily absorbing that poison. The Government in its laboratories where denatured alcohol is made is now using poisons in its efforts to make its liquor impossible to drink. One of these poisons is pyridine. It is poison and enough of it will affect the muscles of the heart and produce death. Another compound the Government is using is diethylphthalate, that causes cramps. It is also using formaline, which is especially hard to eliminate by distilling and is very poisonous. For a time the Government doctored its alcohol with bichloride, but it abandoned this when it found the poison could almost entirely be eliminated by distilling.

WHICH IS THE ISSUE?

According to the Rev. George McDaniel of Richmond, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, the South's or the Southern Baptists' objection to Governor Smith as a Presidential nominee is not that he is a Catholic: "If," he writes, "you want to make a real test as to whether Southern Baptists will vote for a Roman Catholic, try them on Senator Walsh of Montana" Does Mr. McDaniel favor the Montana Catholic and not the New York Catholic because he thinks the former would have no chance and the latter would have a real chance of election? Such suspicion is disposed of as follows: "Baptists do not approve of Governor Smith's attitude toward the Eighteenth amendment. New York, under his leadership, has passed a nullification act which is as foolish as it is futile."

Notwithstanding the personal dryness of Senator Walsh, his State has been equally "foolish." Voting on a referendum in November, Montana struck from its statute books all the State liquor laws except the provision forbidding the sale of liquor to minors, and deliberately "nullified" all that she could of the Eighteenth amendment. It must be admitted, therefore, that Smith's "leadership" has a "punch" that Walsh's seems to lack. And if the issue is not religion but prohibition, as Mr. McDaniel implies, why do spokesmen for his section continually put forward Governor Smith's church as an insuperable objection? Plain speech is desirable in this matter.

This year the records of the United States Post Office Department tell an interesting tale as regards savings. Between Thanksgiving and December 17th, the department for the transmission of money by money order, issued $41,738 money orders to foreign countries and involving an exchange of $7,536,-283.57. And more amazing is the fact that this is an increase of $1,-018,154.65 over the money orders issued to foreign countries for the Christmas season of last year. The fact becomes the more significant when we realize that this money, the most of it, represents money sent by the poorest class of laborers and which they were able to spare after taking care of themselves.

The fact that 13-year-old Peggy Temple, granddaughter of the late Archbishop Temple, has had a 15,-000-word story accepting for publication, does not mean necessarily that she will be a great English novelist twenty or more years hence. Precocious children rarely fulfill their early promise. One of many examples was young Sidis, who lectured on the fourth dimension to a learned Harvard society at the age of ten years, and who, when last heard from at the age of twenty-five, was earning $25 a week as a clerk of some sort, with his early brilliance apparently in eclipse.

Dr. Horace Gray of Chicago assures a convention of scientists that American boys of today are two and a half inches taller than boys of the same age fifty years ago Were measurements of the boys of 50 years ago kept on record and has Dr Gray or any one measured a sufficiently vast number of the boys of today to be sure of a reasonably correct average? Too many large general assertions of this sort are based on too few particular cases.

KEEPING INFECTED TEETH

Can an abscessed tooth be drained completely of all its poison and so remain useful in chewing and grinding the food?

Because if the tooth can be saved it is certainly much better than using an artificial one. But if you are uncertain about it, and your dentist cannot assure you that the tooth is free from poison, you are taking a big chance on your general health in retaining it

Don't misunderstand me. There are folks carrying about a number of infected teeth, and yet are in good health or apparently so. At least they are able to do their work regularly, and have no aches or pains from joint or other ailments.

But when you remember that one in every three joint infections, rheumatism as it is called, is due to abscessed teeth, then you can realize the chance taken by retaining these teeth, even if they do not ache, or cause other trouble.

A British dental surgeon tried to find out how long an abscessed tooth required treatment to render it safe for the system. He found that it took many months to remove all the poison, even in the front teeth, which have only one root canal. For the other teeth, where there were more than the one root canal, the prolonged treatment, time occupied, and necessary expense involved, prevented the saving of these teeth in most cases.

He makes this suggestion. If the dentist cannot definitely assure you that he has removed every trace of the poison from the tooth, then have the tooth extracted.

I believe this is a fair proposition. None of us want to lose our teeth, they are worth so much to us; but it is better to have a few artificial teeth than take chances not only on joint and other ailments, but in a general lowering of the whole tone of the body, and the losing of that much of life itself.

TODAY'S STORY IN NEW YORK HISTORY

By

Frederic A. Godshalks

Captain John Scott Leads English Settlers in Combination of Towns, January 4, 1663.

Prominent among the agitators whom the difficulties on Long Island brought out was Captain John Scott, a man of much boldness, but not of much principle

His activities and intrigues were at the time that the English towns on the island desired to be annexed to Connecticut, as they had nothing in common with the Dutch of New Netherland. They even went so far as to proclaim the King and laws of England, and rise in armed rebellion against the authorities in New Amsterdam

Scott was a former officer in the army of Charles I, in whose cause his father lost both fortune and life. Captain John was detected in a criminal act seized, tried and banished to New England, in charge of an officer who abused him sorely.

Scott passed over to Long Island, nearly one-third of which, according to his own statement, he subsequently purchased

His sufferings in the royal cause did not prevent him from cooperating with Cromwellians in the difficulties of 1654, in the spring of which year he was arraigned before the Council at Fort Amsterdam.

He sailed for England, when he petitioned the King to be invested with the government of Long Island. He succeeded in his deception, returned to America and was immediately commissioned by Connecticut, conjointly with Talcott, Young and Woodall, to incorporate Long Island in that colony.

The English on the west end of Long Island were at that time in a peculiar position, belonging neither to one colony nor the other, and in a measure defenseless in the midst of the Indians. In this dilemma, the discontented intrigue Captain Scott, then residing at Ashford, now Brookhaven, to arrange their difficulties.

On his arrival he told them the King had granted the land to the Duke of York. The towns of Hempstead, Newark, Crafford, Hastings, Folestone and Gravesend, therefore, formed a "combination" to manage their own affairs irrespective of Connecticut. They resolved, January 4, 1663, to elect their own officers, and Captain Scott was made President, when he proclaimed Charles II, and set out at the head of 150 followers, horse and foot, to reduce the neighboring Dutch towns.

The first halt was made January 11 at Breucklen, when Scott addressed the settlers, abused those who resisted his commands, and ordered that they pay no more "tenths," nor obey Peter Stuyvesant.

On the following day Amersfoort and New Utrecht witnessed a repetition of these disorders, and soon as the authorities at New Amsterdam learned of these transactions, officials were dispatched to Long Island to negotiate with Scott for their termination. They were successful, but the Dutch continued to suffer, and collisions occurred with the more violent of Scott's rangers.

A meeting was held at Midwout, February 27, 1664, when it was determined to send a deputation to Holland to lay a report of their sufferings before the State General. Their grievances were heard and assistance promised. The city revenues and tavern licenses were to be used for troops

As the time approached for the threatened incursion of Captain Scott, Director Stuyvesant felt the weight of public opinion, and called his council and city fathers together, but on March 3, the convention determined that the English towns on the western part of Long Island should remain in the King of England for one year. The Dutch were, however, allowed to visit and trade in them.

At the request of the burgomasters and schepens, a general assembly of delegates from the towns was held in the City Hall of New Amsterdam on April 10, 1664, when Jeremias Van Rensselaer was chosen president.

Troops were to be raised for both the Indian War and to protect the Dutch towns against the usurpation of the English, who outnumbered the Dutch six to one. A treaty was made with the Indians, the last one which Stuyvesant made. This was signed May 16, 1664, and a general day of thanksgiving was proclaimed for the 31st of the month.

In the meantime the Court at Hartford had grown suspicious of Scott and he was charged with various high crimes and misdemeanors, arrested and thrown into jail. His imprisonment created much dissatisfaction among the Long Island towns, and a remonstrance signed by 144 inhabitants of Flushing was sent to Hartford, testifying that Scott had acted by desire of the people. But these petitioners were Quakers and their representations had no weight. The Governor and Council of Massachusetts interceded for Scott's release, and their urgent pressing of the matter nearly caused a clash between the colonies.

Soon as Scott was released he took part in the military operations of Governor Nicolls. He urged Carteret and Berkeley to secure New Jersey for themselves; then he quarrelled with Nicolls. Scott finally made his way to Europe, where all trace of him is lost.

Slitting Parrot's Tongue

"It is a widespread superstition that to enable a parrot to talk (in imitation of human speech) it is necessary to split the tongue," says Alexander Wetmore in the Scientific Magazine. "This, however, has no foundation in fact, and when practiced only inflicts an unnecessary cruelty. Birds make sounds in a little organ known as the syrinx at the lower end of the trachea or windpipe, and as the tongue has little to do with the process, splitting it has no connection whatever with the ability to imitate sounds."

Pure Air on Market

In Amsterdam, Holland, the municipal electric light works sell air to citizens. This seems an odd by-product of the electric industry until it is considered that the electric exhaustion process is one of the most effective means of purifying air just as lightning "freshens" a dank and humid atmosphere, stimulating those who breathe it. The Dutch air is drawn down through a chimney 100 feet high, purified and dried by electricity and compressed into cylinders like those used for soda fountain gas in America. These are sold to homes in the city on an annual contract basis, for about $24 a year. Slow release of the air in bedrooms of people afflicted with asthma is said to bring relief to the sufferers.

PUNCTUAL CHRISTMAS

The most wonderful thing in the world was that Christmas was never late in coming.

It seemed, after one Christmas was over, that it would be hard to wait until another whole year was finished for Christmas to come around again.

But it came and it was never, never late. Right along it came, and if people were late, Christmas paid no attention to them.

People would say:

"Goodness, do you realize that it's only two weeks before Christmas and that I'm not half ready."

But that was not the fault of Christmas. Every one knew that Christmas was the twenty-fifth of December and they were at fault if they were late.

At least, Christmas was not going to disappoint those who were on time.

Then another wonderful thing was that not only did Christmas come exactly on time, but Santa Claus was never late.

No, he managed so that no matter how much he had to do, and he certainly had a great deal to do, he was never, never late.

No one could imagine Christmas coming along in January because it had been delayed any more than one could imagine Santa arriving in February because he had so much to do.

Down the Fire Escape.

Oh, no, Santa was always on time.

Sometimes the snow didn't come on time, or it didn't come at all.

In the warm places it didn't come at all, but Santa knew how to get around in the warm places as well as in the cold ones.

He knew how to get everywhere, Santa did.

He knew how to get to the city apartments where there were no fireplaces, for did he not know how to get down the fire escapes.

And Christmas was everywhere, too, at the right time.

As the clocks struck twelve in the different towns and cities and villages and country places on the midnight of December twenty-fourth, it meant that Christmas had come.

Or if a clock was slow, or if a clock had not been wound up and so had stopped, Christmas did not pay any attention to that.

Christmas came along right on time.

Just as Santa Claus came on time.

Oh, Christmas was absolutely punctual and so was Santa Claus.

And when Santa went back home where he lived way, way up North with his reindeer and where his workshop occupied a great, great open space in a snowy land where there were great woods around and oh, such lots of snow, then he would sit down and read again all his letters.

He would get out his magic telescope and look through it and see into the homes and see how the children were enjoying his presents.

And his dog, Boy of the North, would thump with his tail on the floor as his master chuckled and laughed and shouted with glee at the pleasure of the children.

Boy of the North would sometimes bark his delight and Santa would pat Boy of the North on the head and say:

"There is no time like Christmas, is there, Boy of the North?

"It's a busy time and a rushing time and an exciting time, and there is just no other time like it."

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Weed of Newburgh were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Ball.

Miss Elva Smith and brother, Granville, of West New York, were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stott Anderson.

Tuesday evening, January 11, the Maids' and Matrons' Club will hold their meetings at the Community House.

The Christmas supper for the Presbyterian Sunday school members and congregation of the church was held in the church parlor on Monday evening, December 27. There was a very large attendance and the supper was greatly enjoyed by all. The refreshment committee was composed of Mrs. Alfred Jenkins, Mrs. George DuBois, Mrs. William Ordway and Mrs. Charles Taber. After the supper the following musical program was rendered: Chorus, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing;" recitation, Miriam Sears; recitation, Betty Taber; vocal solo, "A Winter Lullaby," Dorothy Deitz; piano solo, Miriam Sears; trio, Marcheta Waltz of the Bells, the Misses Dorothy and Louise Deitz and Lois Taber; addresses by the Rev. J. A. Mac Williams, J. H. Clarke and Mrs. Edward Young. The Sunday school teachers presented each pupil with a Christmas gift and boxes of candy. The Rev. Mr. MacWilliams came up from Ossining especially for the occasion and said he did not remember when he had enjoyed an evening so much. He spoke beautifully of the bountiful supper, the kindness and loyalty of the church members and asked for a good attendance at the service Sunday morning, January 2.

The Milton Melody Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Grover Ferguson, Wednesday afternoon, January 12.

The following school teachers spent the holiday vacation at their homes: Miss Catherine Howard, North Bangor, N. Y.; Miss Christoborough, Plattsburgh; Miss Bombard, Peru, N. Y.; Miss Johnson, Schenectady.

The basketball game on Wednesday evening between the Gaiety Girls and the Green Five was won by the latter team. The score was 15 to 12.

Old-Time Food Production

After making various estimates the Department of Agriculture has decided that the time in our history when about half the people raised food and half the people bought it, was between 1820 to 1830. It would be safe to say that half of the people raised food for half of the population to consume at the end of the first quarter of the Nineteenth century, approximately 1825.

Events Around The Empire State

(By The Associated Press.)

Binghamton—The Supreme court has been asked to order the removal of a United States flag from its stand in a cluster of ash cans that barricade an alley over which there is a right of way under dispute. Claimants to the passageway planted the banner and defied their opponents to remove the cans and use the lane. Those seeking passage through the alley have not dared to molest the flag, but have asked the court to direct that it be taken down and the obstructions removed. Justice Leon M. Rhodes decided that the controversy should be settled by a jury.

Saranac Lake—C. A. Hayes, state game protector in this section of the Adirondacks, has a bobcat for a pet. When he found the animal in a trap at the foot of Mount Colden he noticed that its injuries were only superficial and so he decided to take the cat alive. After a series of maneuvers with crotched sticks, rope and wire he secured the creature and carried it home. It is said to be thriving.

Corning—Decision to retire, close out a business of 40 years and move to California, resulted well for Colonel C. P. Brant, of this city, for in preparing to sell out his store he found a valuable ring lost years ago. Colonel Brant was waiting on a woman customer who wanted a clothes basket. As he removed several styles from the shelf, he heard a metallic sound as something struck the floor and investigated to find a ring given him some years ago by a close friend. Colonel Brant recently ended a term as grand patriarch of the State Encampment of Odd Fellows.

Waterport—Mrs. Anna Amos was 100 years old on Armistice Day and now is looking forward to 101. She was born in London, England, and came to this country at the age of 22 in a sailing craft that lost its rudder en route, drifted helplessly for five months and finally sighted land off the West Indies. Mrs. Amos finally joined her husband at Batavia. She came to this village to live with a daughter when her husband died 30 years ago. Mrs. Amos has been blind for 18 years She has 25 grandchildren, 35 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. A sister, 15 years her junior, lives in England.

Penn Yan—An extension school has been opened at Penn Yan in an effort to relieve crowded conditions at the State School of Mental Defectives at Newark. It is similar to the branch started at Geneseo last year, and 16 girls from the Newark institution are now here. The state has leased the Potter homestead on the Penn Yan-Dundee highway, about a mile from this village It is expectedthat young women of more advanced mental development will be sent to the colony from the parent school, a system that has proved successful in the Geneseo colony. They are under the care of a matron, and do the housework for the colony. Although the two colonies are in the nature of an experiment, from authoritative sources it has been learned that additional colonies may be established in central and eastern New York if the system proves satisfactory. The activities of the girls sent here are strictly supervised and it is planned later to permit them to enter domestic service in the village as they prove capable of accepting positions.

McRAE NEW COMMANDER OF SECOND CORPS AREA

Major General James H. McRae, new commander of the Second Corps Area, comprising the states of New York, New Jersey and Delaware, will arrive at Governors Island on January 10, according to Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, who has been in command since General Summerall's departure.

During the World War General McRae made a brilliant record while in command of the 78th Division, composed of National Army troops from New Jersey. This division made a conspicuous showing during the Argonne offensive, one of its principal victories being the operation which forced the German evacuation of Grandpre.

In taking over the important Second Corps Area he follows two other outstanding leaders of the war, General Robert Lee Bullard, who retired in 1924, and General Charles P. Summerall, present Chief of Staff of the Army.

HYDROGEN AS BALLOON GAS REGAINING FAVOR.

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP).—Helium, one of the youngest members of a large family of gases, but very useful to Uncle Sam because it lifts balloons, is looking to its laurels. Hydrogen, an older brother, is returning to favor.

Because of its high inflammability, hydrogen left a quality to be desired which helium was subsequently found to possess. Helium, however, was exceedingly rare as opposed to the abundance of its rival, and it was expensive to manufacture.

Recently the experience of a British dirigible visited by lightning during a storm led to the conclusion that hydrogen was more to be respected than disdained. If they could eliminate an additional hazard, that of the combustible fumes generated by the gasoline motors, engineers believe they re-establish hydrogen as premier for gas-bag inflation. Development of an engine utilizing crude oil for fuel has monopolized their efforts.

Young Men Seek Kick of Adventure

State Police Swamped By Application of Youths Who Can Get a Kick While Keeping Order for the State.

Love of the dollar has not yet sapped the frontiersman's spirit of adventure in the American youth, in the opinion of Earl Chapin May who has just completed a nationwide survey of state police systems. He has found that in spite of meager pay ten times as many young men are trying to join the state police service annually as there are places for them in the ranks.

Writing in the January issue of the Elks magazine, Mr. May declares, "It is the ever impending possibility that each of them may be called upon to take long chances that keep most of the young fellows in the ranks, for the pay is small and the hours long."

Building Legends.

They are willing to face the dull routine of inspecting motorcar licenses, chasing chicken thieves, checking up on motion picture theatre capacity and exits and directing tourists for just the bare opportunity at the adventure that lies around the corner, he says.

And as the state police services, now extending from Maine to Virginia along the Atlantic coast and functioning in Michigan, Oregon and Texas, continue to spread, the "country cops" who make good on that lone chance are building legends of adventure which are attracting new generations in increasing numbers to their standards.

Single Handed Acts.

He cites the example of the stripling trooper, "Pinkie" Lester, who single-handed subdued the lawless Block Island community off the Rhode Island coast, arresting the ring-leader without use of arms, and of the Texas Ranger, Tom Hickman, who entered a stronghold of a bandit gang unaided and brought out the four embattled desperados

Bank banditry, Mr. May points out, has been materially decreased in those states where troopers, unhampered by sheriffs' boundaries and lack of cooperation, can set a statewide net within an hour. Michigan troopers within three months participated in the capture of three groups of bank robbers—a feat which has had its reflection in a distinct lull in bank holdups.

"Thus," the Elks Magazine article concludes, "do state troopers have a taste of that variety which is the spice of life. There is no money in the trooper game. But what is money when one can get a kick while keeping order for the state?"

Poor Music

A very deaf old lady, walking along the street, saw an Italian turning a musical machine. She stood looking at it awhile, shook her head and said: "No, I don't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and, besides, it smells as if there were something burning inside."

League Uses Rag Dolls in Study

Detroit, Jan 4 (AP).—The little rag doll, which tightly clutched in small hands means so much to many childish hearts, is taking on a new meaning for older girls in Michigan's primary schools

Through cooperation between the Michigan State Health Department and the "Little Mothers' League", the little effigy upon which is lavished the "mother instinct" of the youngsters is being used to promote basic training for parenthood

Care For Them as Babies.

Each little member of the League has her chance to "mother" one of the dolls, to dress it in the most comfortable of clothes and learn what practical care is necessary to make "babies" grow The smallest girls, watched by competent nurses, bathe and dress their dolls and lay them in comfortable beds of their own making.

More than 22 000 girls enrolled in the Little Mothers' League the first half of this year Many have been graduated, receiving merit badges and diplomas with the privilege of continuing their work as long as they care to through correspondence

Decrease Infant Mortality

Girls from 10 to 16 years old compose the majority of League members At the end of each course usually containing twelve lessons, they are required to pass examinations and those who are successful are graduated At this time each group holds exhibitions inviting the mothers to attend

By teaching girls to help train younger children in the home and through their efforts educate the parents the state department believes it can decrease infant mortality and raise Michigan health standards

Four nurses are employed full time teaching these classes in the schools of Michigan Where there is a competent nursing service, the nurses employed locally have frequently taken over this work themselves although the state department in an effort to keep the training consistent, furnishes the materials

URGES SOCIAL HYGIENE INSTRUCTION OF CHILDREN

In a health talk broadcast from Station WGY Schenectady, Dr Carroll C Croff of the division of social hygiene State Department of Health, advocated the instruction of children either in the home or the school, in all matters relating to social hygiene

Decrying the age-old policy of parents not informing or misinforming children regarding the beginnings of life Dr Croff showed that such methods drove children to acquire information on the subject from older children and usually resulted in a greatly distorted viewpoint. Such instruction should come from the father or mother, she said, or be given in the schools or both The time is soon coming, she believes, when social hygiene will have a recognized place in the school curriculum Instruction should begin with the younger children in a description in story form of the reproduction of life in plants and the lower forms of animals

Parents who felt a hesitancy or an inability to inform their children in the right way on matters of this kind, are urged to bring their problems to the attention of the director of the division of social hygiene, State Department of Health, Albany

BUSINESS WOMEN PREFER SPORTS TYPES, CAPITAL SURVEY SHOWS.

Two-Piece Frocks, Reports Fur Coats, Small Felt Hats Favored by Government Employes.

Washington.—Is modern office work regarded as a sport? The question is inevitable after surveying some thousands of smart business girls pouring out of one of Uncle Sam's government departments.

The sports theme was sponsored so strongly by these representative business women as to be outstanding in interest, and almost dominant even, from the numerical standpoint. Certain items that could be classified as of sports nature appeared in almost every costume, even though the ensemble was not of the typical sports variety.

Dresses represented by far the most important phase of the adoption of the sports theme by the business girl The simply made two-piece frock of crepe was most in evidence, while jerseys and wool crepes also were seen frequently Intricate trimming effects were absent. Bands contrasting material in degrade tones were a favored decoration Although touches of lace and embroidery appeared on occasion, this type of trim was very restrained and usually was confined to touches at the neck, and on the sleeves

Practicality and Smartness Meet.

The considerable adoption of sports dresses for office wear suggests that business women find that the simplicity of the sports frocks makes it appropriate for business, while its good style satisfies a desire for smartness The sports idea apparently reconciles the opposing views of the average head of an office, who wishes his stenographers to be dressed quietly and without superfluous frills and the not-to-be-suppressed desire of the aforesaid stenographers to wear smart clothes without a suggestion of dowdiness or drabness

In coats a somewhat different approach to the clothes problem is noted While the wool novelty coat of distinctively sport type was worn by many of the smartest girls the fur-trimmed cloth coat for all occasions was considerably in the majority This is to be explained probably by the fact that the average business girl cannot afford to buy several coats unless she compromises on decidedly low-priced styles Practically all of the coats seen belonged decidedly in the fairly high-priced range Both the cloths and the furtrims were of excellent type The cheap fur trimming was entirely absent The average girl apparently has decided that the best coat "buy" for her is a model of good quality that can be worn appropriately for almost every daytime and evening occasion For the girls who selected the sports coats it might be hazarded as a guess that they had supplemented them with an evenning wrap of some sort

Warm Tones Preferred.

A decided partiality to warm colors was evinced in the coats, a considerable percentage having selected dark reds Various shades of brown were in the majority, but in these it was noted that the warm coppery tones were more prominent than the softer shadings. Rather lavish fur trims were favored, the tuxedo fronts and frequently in collars and cuffs

In fur coats, the sports theme again came to the front strongly. The time-honored seal apparently has no charms for the modern business girl. Approximately twenty per cent of the throng wore fur coats, and at least nine-tenth of these girls favored such sports furs as caracul, pony, muskrat, and raccoon, with the first-named pelt leading strongly A few smart broadtail coats were seen The average price paid for these coats would seem to range between $175 and $225. The cheaper type of fur coats was practically absent.

Felt and Velour Hats.

The small hat of felt or velour was chosen so universally as to seem to be uniform, were if not for variations in shape and color. The general idea was to match or harmonize the hat with the coat, although the use of contrasting color was noted also.

A great number of youthful oxford types was the most interesting feature of the footwear. While both spike and the low-heeled varieties were worn, there was a greater representation of the latter than might have been expected Combination leathers in shades of brown were predominant, with calf most used, although suede and reptilian leathers were also quite important.

On Fashions

WHITE BEADED AND SPANGLED DRESSES ARE THE SMARTEST IN PARIS, AND VARY IN SILHOUETTE.

Paris.—At this season the world of fashion is interested in what will be worn in the south, whether it be the south of France or America From what one sees in Paris, it seems safe to say that white will dominate, although color will, of course, be worn

The all-white evening gown is, at the moment, the most chic of all evening gowns It is usually beaded, or it sparkles with paillettes, but it is occasionally of chiffon

If you can afford but one new evening dress and already have a black which may serve, consider white, for it is hardly more perishable than flesh or a delicate color, and is decidedly more elegant Silver gowns are classed as white, and by silver one may mean anything from the shimmering silver-spangled gown to the one which combines silver with crystal or pearl beads—perhaps with both.

Interesting Lines Are Created in This Dress of Pale Green Chiffon by Appliques of the Fabric. These Appliques Are Released at the Sides and So Create a Flowing Line.

Nor are spangled or beaded dresses straight sheaths Sometimes they have a circular skirt and short bolero, which breaks at a normal waist-line. Sometimes the dress is a straight sheath which, with the aid of godets, billows out into a petal-like silhouette, this fulness being accented by a difference in the embroidery. In one instance, a white chiffon was beaded in crystals, the godets being of silver spangles, tiny but brilliant

There is a certain sapphire-blue spangled gown that one meets with everywhere in Paris. It has a straight bolero back of the spangles, and a circular skirt, also solidly spangled. Fringed dresses, still very smart, are even smarter when the fringe is of small beads

MALE CHILD BORN NOW IS WORTH $1,780 MORE

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4.—A male child born today, and living under present mortality conditions is worth more by $1,780, as an economic asset, than if it had been born 25 years ago, and had lived under conditions then prevailing. It is estimated that the gain accruing in this way to the future dependents of all male children born in the current year will reach the astounding total of two billion, three hundred million dollars.

This was the substance of a paper presented at the annual meeting of the American Statistical Association here yesterday by Dr. Louis I Dublin, and Dr. Alfred J. Lotka, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who gave an estimate of the pecuniary gains resulting from increased length of life.

On the basis of expectation of life in the United States, in 1924, a new born male baby has a value of $9,333, as figured from his net future earnings. According to the expectation of life in 1901 his value would be only $7,553. Thus, the improved expectation of life amounting to nearly nine additional years of life, corresponds to a gain of $1,780 in the value of a boy at birth. At age 21, the gain is $1,314; at age 50, the gain is reduced to $274. The smaller gain at the higher age is due to the fact that a man of 50 has fewer productive years before him, so that decreased mortality has less influence on his total future earnings. We may compute the total gain to those who benefit from the earnings of all the persons saved to longer life. For males alone this figure amounts to $2,500,000,000 every year. Suitable data for computing a figure for females are lacking, but a conservative estimate would put the total gain, for both sexes at about three and one-half billion dollars per annum.

SOME GOOD THINGS

A good cake is always a welcome dainty and not always easy to make unless one is in practice. Cake making, like everything else, is improved by practice. The following layer cake is one of fine texture and very delicate when carefully made:

White Layer Cake.—Cream together one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sweet milk, add two cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and then fold in the whites of eight eggs, beaten stiff.

Roll Jelly Cake.—Beat three eggs until light, add one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of cold water and a pinch of salt. Stir in one cupful of flour which has been sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, add the flour gradually, mixing well. Bake in a dripping pan well greased. Turn out on a towel wrung out of cold water Spread with jelly, roll up while warm.

Apple Sauce Cake.—Cream one cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of sifted apple sauce, one teaspoonful of soda, one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, spices, raisins—or currants if wished. Bake in a loaf or in gem pans.

Date Cake.—Take one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one egg, one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, one cupful of boiling water, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of walnut meats, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Pour the boiling water over the dates after removing the stones, add the soda, then the other ingredients as usual. Ice with one-half cupful of sour cream and one-half cupful of brown sugar until creamy.

Graham Gems—Take one cupful of sour milk, one beaten egg, one tablespoonful of fat, a little salt, one cupful of graham flour, one-half cupful of sugar or less, one teaspoonful of soda. Bake in gem pans.

So Soft—So White

By Edna Wallace Hopper.

Nearly every woman who sees them envies me my hands. They ask me how I keep them so soft, so white, so young.

They know that I travel all the time. My stage work encounters all sorts of grime and dirt. In most cities the water is hard. Yet the most sheltered women rarely have such hands. They never chap.

The reason lies in a hand lotion perfected for me by great experts. I apply it whenever I wash my hands. It is not greasy or sticky. It disappears at once. And it overcomes all that water does, all that soap does, all that grime does to the hands. Also all that weather does, all that the years do. My own hands form evidence supreme.

This hand lotion is now supplied by all toilet counters. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Hand Lotion. The price is 60c.

I urge you to try it. I think I have tried nearly everything of this kind, but nothing compares with this. A guarantee comes with it. Your dealer will return your money if it does not please. Go get it and see what it means to you.

Christmas at The Benedictine

During Christmastide an atmosphere of festivity pervaded the Benedictine Hospital. The beautiful chapel with its marble altar was profusely decorated with lilies, roses and poinsettias, the gifts of friends of the institution. In the chapel the crib depicting the first Christmas in Bethlehem was an inspiration to the many persons who visited it during the holidays, the last of which, the Epiphany, falls on Thursday of this week.

On Christmas Eve the patients were visited by cheery old Santa Claus who presented each a pretty Christmas gift. A Sister introduced each person to Santa Claus who proved an excellent entertainer. At the same time the sweet strains of "O Holy Night" and other Christmas carols resounded through the rooms and wards of the hospital. The young ladies who volunteered their services in singing were the Misses Messinger, Miss Fors, Miss Cowley and Miss Lichty, members of the Shubert Choral Club. On Christmas morning the patients were awakened very early by the combined choir of student nurses and nuns who went through the corridors singing Christmas hymns before wending their way to the chapel for Mass.

The trays for the patients were artistically decorated and were well filled with the usual Christmas viands. Pretty favors were made by the student nurses under the direction of Miss Mae Bender, dietitian. Baskets of fruit and dainty boxes of candy sent by grateful friends of the institution were very much appreciated by the nurses and Sisters.

The hospital was artistically decorated by the officers of the Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. J. Goldrick, president. The trees were furnished by A. H. Gildersleeve & Son. The doctors gave generously toward the spread of Christmas cheer as did the Ladies' Auxiliary who furnished delicious ice cream for the entire hospital. Individual gifts too numerous to mention helped to make a Merry Christmas in the Benedictine Hospital. The Sisters are very grateful to their many friends who helped materially in establishing a Merry Christmas throughout the institution.

MALLARD DUCKS ABOUND IN CHENANGO VALLEY

Shelburne, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP)—Mallard ducks, direct descendants of birds originally propagated on the state game farm here, are now to be found in force in the Chenango River Valley.

The colony traces its ancestry back to a setting of eggs hatched at the farm some time ago. Succeeding generations have multiplied until the birds are now nesting on the Chenango and the small streams tributary to it, having apparently lost their migratory instincts. They are sufficiently numerous to afford a season of duck shooting throughout the section.

Harry T. Rogers, superintendent of the farm, reports that the birds are to be found throughout the winter, seeking food up and down the river valley, and are apparently well able to take care of themselves. Every night, he says, finds from one to two hundred ducks alighting on the ponds of the farm, remaining for the night.

Minstrel Show At Ulster Park

Colonial Chapter, Order of De Molay, are preparing an unusually clever minstrel performance to be given in two parts on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at Odd Fellows' Hall, Ulster Park. Already the boys of this chapter have given a similar performance at Hunter which was a great success and have dates for a repetition of Thursday evening's program on January 20, at Highland and February 4 at Chichester.

The minstrels are in two parts. The first part is entitled "Patsy Bolivar's School Room Minstrels, with Dick Obenaus, who has been coaching the fellows, as "Teacher." On looking over the names of the eighteen members of this cast, not a girl's name appears, yet those who attend the minstrels will be quite certain that Patsy Bolivar's School is co-educational.

The second half of the program will include five vaudeville acts.

Fredie Clark and Art Lacy, banjo and singing.

Jewish Sketch, Harry Barnhart and Ellery Morris.

Magician's Act, Fred VanDeusen.

Musical Stunt, Dick Obenaus.

Comedy Scene, "Over the River, Charley." Arthur Pennington, Henry Dittus, Oscar P. Dsidolf.

The program will be followed by dancing.

TO TRACE LEGEND OF THE HOLY GRAIL

University Professor Plans Exhaustive Search.

Dr. A. C. L. Brown, professor of English at Northwestern university, will devote the six months from February to September, 1927, to collecting evidence in support of his discoveries on the origin of the Grail, and to writing out his results.

"The legend of the Holy Grail is one of the most interesting themes in literature," explained Doctor Brown. "It appeared suddenly in France in the Twelfth century, took the world of letters by storm, and has continued to grow and prosper in all European countries. The legend is best known in Tennyson's 'Idylls of the King' and in Wagner's great opera, 'Parsifal,' although many English poets, like Hawker and William Morris, have written about it. American poets have not escaped its charm. One thinks of Lowell, Richard Hovey, and our contemporary, Edwin Arlington Robinson. The vitality of the legend is astonishing. At this moment in most civilized countries, there are probably poets busy re-writing it.

"The growth of this legend since its spectacular disclosure to the world has been studied in many books. Especially in French and German universities has attention been given to it. The history of the legend from its first appearance in literature is well known. But the question where the legend comes from, previous to its appearance in France 800 years ago, although often asked, has never been answered. It is this question of the remote origin of the Grail story with which I shall be occupied. It is one of the great unsolved problems in literature. Its solution would throw light on the growth of European literature and supply new facts for psychologists and students of the historical development of human thought.

"Most writers of the Grail have been chiefly familiar with recent versions of the story, like those told by Wagner and Tennyson. In all these versions, the Grail is undeniably a Christian legend. Most books, therefore, convey the idea that the Grail story was from the beginning fashioned by the church. On the other hand, an old tradition tells us that the Grail was originally a heathen story and came from Celtic lands. It is my opinion that this tradition is correct and that the hidden sources of the Grail will be found in Ireland.

"It is not generally known that a thousand years ago the Irish were the best story tellers in the world and that they possessed a literature which was superior to English and even vied with that of France. The Irish had a language of their own, rich in synonyms and peculiarly adapted to poetry. Nor do people realize that in the ancient libraries of Dublin are many books written in the old Irish and Gaelic language that have never been translated. In these neglected books may lie hidden the secret of the Grail.

"One of the reasons why the problem of the Grail has remained so long unsolved is that few scholars have ever had a sufficiently wide equipment of languages to be able to deal with it as a whole. One must know not only old French, old English, and old German—a good many scholars possess this equipment—but also old Welsh and old Irish."

Silk Stocking Ingratitude

David Clark, the textile expert, said at a dinner in Charlotte:

"Woman won't help the cotton grower in his extremity by wearing cotton stockings, and this is a piece of ingratitude towards a class of men to whom we owe much.

"Ingratitude!" An Englishman said to his children one day:

"Yes, children, David Lloyd George saved his country in the dark days of the World war just as truly as Joan of Arc saved France."

"Then, father," piped a little girl, "why didn't they burn him to death?"

Uselessness of War Proved by Voltaire

One of Voltaire's most popular books, his history of Charles XII, is devoted to a practical proof of the utter folly of war. The life of Charles XII of Sweden is an example without equal of the colossal futility of war. Charles, one of the world's most inspiring examples of a capable, indefatigable ruler, in a life of self-denial had but one fault. He spent his entire life making war. Starting his career at the age of eighteen with the successful defense of his kingdom against the combined forces of several of the greatest countries of Europe, within a comparatively short time he was complete dictator of eastern Europe. Many times he overwhelmed forces outnumbering his own five or ten to one. Crowning and dethroning kings almost at will, his aims were usually altruistic. He sought always to be impartial and just. He undertook no offensive war with the intention of bettering himself or his country. Yet when he died he had done no lasting good. He had irreparably impoverished his own and other countries, and had wasted his great life, which might have been so productive of good to the world. In telling this most significant story Voltaire impressed upon the world the terrifying uselessness of the thing he so hated—war.—From "The Young Voltaire," by C. B. Chase.

The Blue Danube

Near Vienna on the Danube at the Iron Gates the speed of the current is from 12 to 16 feet per second—and the British monitor the Glowworm got stymied halfway up it, couldn't go either forward or astern, and had to hold down her valves to get a high enough head of steam to struggle out of it. It was a question whether she would go up or blow up.

It takes a special towing steamer, pulling itself up on a cable from one end one-half to two hours, to go up this two-kilometer stretch. The Germans used locomotives to tow ships through it during the war. Down below Orsova these dreaded Iron Gates are not one-half so sticky as the sixty-five miles of rapids and submerged ledges below Drenova. As a matter of fact, the "Schachlet" by Vlaholen is one of the easiest parts of the river.—Negley Farson in Adventure Magazine.

MORSCHAUSER UPHELD IN RHINELANDER CASE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan 4 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser was informed today that the appellate division, second department, had upheld his ruling denying a new trial to Leonard Kip Rhinelander in his unsuccessful annulment action against his negress wife, Alice Jones Rhinelander, tried in White Plains last spring before Justice Morschauser. There was one dissenting opinion in the appellate division, that of Justice Lazansky. Justice Morschauser's award of $12,000 counsel fee to Lee Parsons Davis, Mrs. Rhinelander's trial counsel, also was affirmed.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 4 (AP).—Speculators for the decline succeeded in bringing about a further reaction in today's market. A large increase in brokers' loans last week, disquieting Mexican dispatches and speculative disappointment over the action of directors of the Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe Railroad in declaring an extra cash dividend of only 75c, all tended to create bearish sentiment, which an ease of money rates and optimistic business forecasts could not counteract

Wall Street apparently had an inkling of the action to be taken by Atchison directors as the stock opened at 4¼ points lower, rallied above 165, just before the dividend action was announced, and then sold down to 162½, an overnight loss of nearly six points Sharp recessions also took place in such issues as Atlantic Coast Line, Jersey Central and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Selling of stocks also may have been influenced by a poor November earnings report by the Pullman Company, which showed an operating deficit of nearly $75,000 as against operating income of nearly $320,000 in the same month of 1925, a drop in freight traffic on the Chicago and Northwestern in December, a decline of 50c a ton on Bessemer iron in the Pittsburgh district and a falling off in December sales of the Sears Roebuck Company compared with the year before.

An attempt to rally the list by bidding up a selected list of motor, sugar and tobacco shares around midday met with little success, although gains of 2 to 3 points were recorded by a few issues in those groups. These were reduced when selling pressure was renewed in the early afternoon.

Binnewater, Jan. 4.—A large number attended the Christmas exercises held last Thursday evening in the chapel. The recitations, songs and instrumental selections were well applauded. Encores were given. After the exercises the presents were distributed to the children and they took great pleasure in showing to one another the kind remembrances of their friends. Before leaving, the ladies made everyone glad they were there, for some excellent cake and a hot cup of coffee were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Menchun donated oranges and everyone enjoyed this delicious fruit. After wishing all a happy New Year the people returned to their homes greatly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

AT, COLORFUL AND PRACTICAL IS THE STYLISH JERSEY DRESS

RIED, true and not found want-ing" is all-wool jersey. The more ear it, the more we like it. That nts for its widespread popularity, present and future, according to on's foreword.

hoolgirls nowadays are looking winsome in cheery jersey frocks, as burgundy red, chanel red, y blossom, rosewood, bright , vivid blue and rich forest n. What the favored tailored y dress lacks in fanciful detail it e up for in gay colorings. Never more radiant colorings exploited ractical daytime wear than in very winter season.

all appearance jersey dresses, the of which most everyone is wear-his season, or if not, they should, here is no material comparable to y for looks, service and comfort, very simply made. Close scru-however, reveals multitudinous ng details.

is clever detail and vibrant color spells attractiveness for the and serviceable gown shown in picture. Its outstanding style-s are a bit of shirring at the shoulder seam, a slight flare for the front skirt portion acquired by tucking it into a deep-pointed blouse top, the inevitable narrow belt, streamers of the fabric from the collar, the entire enlivened by a colorful dash of yarn embroidery on the sleeves.

Latest jersey models show an interesting innovation in the way of a belt, and insets in the collar and cuffs of suede leather the identical color of the jersey.

In the schoolgirl jersey frocks, sometimes monogram embroidery is shown where one might expect a breast pocket. Touches of gold or silver metal are often used such as brass belt buckles, brass buttons, also metal pocketbook clasps such as are clamped over edging of collar and cuffs.

48,175 Cars Used Parking Grounds

From April 1, 1926, to January 1, 1927, the total number of motor vehicles to whom Caretaker Joseph Schuler of the public parking grounds on John and Crown streets issued tickets was 48,175. By months the parkings were:

April, 4,860.
May, 5,900.
June, 5,700.
July, 5,030.
August, 5,390.
September, 5,425.
October, 5,225.
November, 5,025.
December, 5,620.

As May was the month for greatest number of parkings, it is evident that more people visited town that month than they did during the Christmas holiday season as the number during the month of December was 280 less. Caretaker Schuler says that there had been no complaint made to him and that a large number of cars were parked in the public parking grounds without getting a ticket, several making a practice of parking their autos there over night.

Punching a Home Time-Clock

In a recent copy of a well-known magazine I was interested to see a clock-like arrangement of the working hours of a home woman's day, in which the hours, half-hours and quarter-hours were marked off and allotted to various household tasks. Of course, I studied this chart a bit, as we women are always on the lookout for new and better ways of managing our homes.

It was all very methodical. Seven to eight, get the family up and prepare breakfast; eight to nine, breakfast, get husband off to office and children to school, stack dishes for electric washer, vacuum-clean dining-room rug; nine to eleven-thirty, make beds, clean upstairs and down, wash curtains; eleven-thirty to eleven-forty-five, rest, and write a letter. The afternoon was scheduled in much the same way—prepare lunch, eat lunch with children, wash dishes, prepare vegetables for dinner; a half-hour's mending or pressing; attend a club meeting or make calls; a half-hour's play with the children; prepare dinner, eat dinner, wash dishes, and spend a pleasant evening! The housework was made easy and quick by electric heaters and cookers, toasters, dish washer, iron, clothes dryer, vacuum cleaner, mending and darning machine, the latest kitchen equipment throughout, and an automobile.

Well, I read, and as I read I grinned. Where, in this neat schedule, was there time for the hundred and one interruptions of a woman's day—the fifteen-minute telephone pest, the neighbor with a little sick boy, the extra cake for the church fair, the hurry-up frock for Marjorie's first big dance, the wrestle with the furnace fire, which got too low; the suddenly-arrived relative, Johnny's coming home from school with the mumps, the discovery that the grocer's delivery boy had not come? Any one of these familiar happenings can throw the best-planned schedule in the world from fifteen minutes to an hour behind time, and no woman on earth can catch up!

Of course, this isn't to say that a schedule is not a good thing and that the modern household devices do not make our burdens much lighter. We all have to have system, and electric assistance helps us do more in less time. But unless we stand ready to have our schedule bumped and dented and shoved and pushed back and whirled around, and to face these changes with cheerful poise and quick readjustments, "doing the next thing" as it comes up—well, we may be house managers but we shall not be home makers. The wife and mother cannot punch a time clock!

Druggists' Mortar Old

The druggists' mortar, which has come down to modern generations almost unchanged in shape, can be traced back to prehistoric times. The mortar in its present shape was used centuries before medicine was known as an art, and was used to crush hard bodies. It was used by savages as well as civilized peoples.

BARBS

OLD BILL SAYS—

Oil on a reamer often has a tendency to make it cut undersize.

If the hole should be undersize with a power reamer, it can be sized accurately with a hand reamer.

Talking about what you have done won't get you far in this or any other shop; let's see what you can do now.

A hand reamer is never intended to be run with power or to take a heavy cut because it cuts only on the side.

Modern methods demand modern equipment; the modern machinist must keep posted on the latest developments in the trade.

When reaming a number of pieces always test the first hole to make sure that the reamer is not cutting oversize.

WAYSIDE NUGGETS

Living too fast a life will cause you to want to leave it, if you don't leave it before you want to.

There are a few more men than women in the United States, but the extra number is always odd.

The girl who said she would marry just as soon as her grandmother did, was wedded at sixteen and had to hurry.

The little lady who lost that gold flask recently, will confer a favor by coming after the darn thing. It was empty.

There are a lot of old people who have passed the hundred mark and think they will live longer if they can forget the modern haste and turbidness.

RHINEBECK'S WINNING STREAK OF TEN STRAIGHT BROKEN.

One of the best basketball games ever played on any court in Dutchess county was witnessed by the biggest crowd of the season at Rhinebeck New Year's night when the fast St. Peter's quintet beat Rhinebeck by the close score of 27 to 26. Rhinebeck had a winning streak of ten straight games. The first half of the game was played under professional rules. The Saint being used to this style of play led their Dutchess county opponents by ten points, the score at half time being St. Peter's 15; Rhinebeck, 5. The second half of the contest was played under the A. A. U. Rules. Rhinebeck then began cutting the lead held by Manager McNally's men. In this half the lead changed hands several times and with about half a minute left to play a foul shot by Van Buren was enough to win for McNally's quint. Referee, A. Sippelly. Timekeeper—Shad. Scorers—Tator and McNally.

Delaney Now Talks to Rickard

New York, Jan. 4 (AP).—Tex Rickard enlarged his heavyweight war map to include Jack Delaney today before boarding a train for St. Louis to sign up Gene Tunney for a fight next fall.

A course to reconciliation between the promoter and the world lightweight champion appeared to have been opened after a conference yesterday in which Pete Reilly, manager of Delaney, met Rickard for the first time since their split last spring. Reilly admitted he had given his consent for Delaney to fight either Jack Dempsey or Tunney.

Bouts for Delaney with Paul Berlenbach, Jack Sharkey, Paolino Uzcudun and Jimmy Maloney, among others, also were discussed, but Reilly objected to Delaney's participation in Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament. He contended that Delaney already had qualified for either Dempsey or Tunney by his quick knockout triumph over Bud Gorman.

"I signed no binding document, and I told Rickard I wanted Delaney to fight Dempsey early next summer," said Reilly. "Tunney, as well as Rickard, wants the man who will draw the most in a heavyweight title bout next fall. Delaney will fight Dempsey and beat him I see no reason for Delaney beating any of the others."

Use for Oyster Shells

Oyster shells are used for five purposes—"shelling," chicken grit, fertilizer, lime and road building. By far the most important use is for shelling. By this is meant the planting of them in oyster beds, in order that the spat may fasten on them.

In the thirty-second annual Old Glory sale of light harness horses, 400 horses changed hands for a total of $334,225. While fewer horses were sold for a slightly smaller total than in 1926, the average per head was higher this year. The high light of the sale came in the auction of Adios, two-year-old trotting champion of the season, which brought $17,000. Bidding was light.

Spiritualization

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press.)

Zach Wheat, western outfielder recently cast adrift by the Brooklyn Robins, may catch a line thrown out by the New York Giants. Manager McGraw admits he is "interested" in Wheat. He also expresses high satisfaction over receiving the signed contract of Infielder Bill Terry, who was the Giants' most obstinate holdout last spring.

Horse racing statistics for 1926 reveal 124 victories for the silks of Harry Payne Whitney, a record in turf history. The winnings of his horses, $410,500, were lower, however, than the mark of $438,000 made by the H. F. Sinclair stable in 1923 with the aid of the mighty Zev.

Red Chapman of Boston, disqualified for fouling Benny Bass in the first round of their recent featherweight championship elimination fight in New York, is to have another chance. Tex Rickard shortly will toss the same pair into the ring again in the hope of producing a decisive winner to face Honeyboy Finnegan.

A dash into the south by Dartmouth track athletes has been arranged for next spring, with three intersectional meets on the schedule. The green spiked toe brigade will engage University of Virginia on April 2, William and Mary on April 5, and Virginia Poly on April 9.

RESULTS IN MERCANTILE BOWLING LEAGUE.

Four teams in the Mercantile League contested on the "Y" alleys on Monday night. The U. S. Lace Mills defeated the Bankers and Grocers' quintet two out of three games. Finch was the leading scorer for the lace makers with 495 points. Winnie did the best work for the Bankers and Grocers, corralling 476.

The K. G. & E. Secondaries were given a drubbing by the Y. M. C. A. aggregation and could not succeed in taking even one game of the three played. Jordan did the scintillating for the Y bowlers, scoring 458 points. The high point-getter on the gasmen's team was Whitney, who succeeded in 435 markers.

MUNN LOST TO LEWIS IN TWO STRAIGHT FALLS.

Chicago, Jan. 4 (AP).—Ed (Strangler) Lewis settled his two-year-old dispute with Wayne Munn over the heavyweight wrestling title last night. Lewis took two straight falls with a succession of crushing headlocks.

Munn, who two years ago tossed Lewis out of a Kansas City ring and claimed championship when Lewis did not appear for the third and deciding fall, had Lewis in danger only once. He made Lewis tussle for almost an hour for the first fall, but appeared hurt and lost the second in 12 and a half minutes.

The match, in which Lewis's $10,000 diamond championship belt was at stake, drew a record Chicago wrestling crowd of 10,000 fans, and a gate of $25,000.

Doors to Human Mind

There are seven doors to the human mind, according to Prof. Victor Alvin Ketcham, who is a specialist in expression at Ohio State university. his announcement having been made at a meeting of the advertising club in Boston recently. He listed the seven as follows: Visual, auditory, motor, tactile, olfactory, gustatory and thermic. Orators can be rated according to their ability to open one or more of these doors, possession of all being an important power in developing the art of making people see the facts the speaker is presenting.—Ohio State Journal.

Women in English Pulpits

Rev. Joyce Duplyn, secretary of the Union of Women Voters, is the youngest of British women preachers. England now has ten fully qualified women ministers in the Baptist, Congregational and Unitarian churches, the only denominations which so far admit women to their ministry. In addition there are six women who have not formally qualified as ministers but are in charge of churches.—Indianapolis News.

Humanity's Odd Trait

The world is full of faint hearts, and yet everyone has courage enough to bear the misfortunes and wisdom enough to manage the affairs of his neighbors.—Poor Richard.

1917-19 Charges Will Be Aired

Thirty-eight Men Have Been Asked to Appear Wednesday Before Commissioner Landis, When Risberg Tells of Diamond Scandal.

Chicago, Jan. 4 (AP).—Many acceptances have been received Commissioner K. M. Landis for hearing tomorrow when Charles "Swede" Risberg will dangle his former White Sox teammates members of the Detroit Tigers baseball skeletons of ten years

Poking up the dead embers of late weeks of the 1917 Amer League season is expected to organized baseball at least $10,0 Thirty-eight men have been to be present when Risberg tializes before them the ghost diamond scandal. Some of the players and former players will 2,000 miles to reach the commissioner's office. Their expenses guaranteed.

Commissioner Landis's invitations to the ball players to appear at office indicated that both the 1917 and 1919 scandal charges would aired. "The commissioner conduct a hearing," said his gram to the players, "respecting charges of irregularity in connection with the Detroit-Chicago series September 1917 and 1919."

Ty Cobb, whose departure baseball at the end of last season was shadowed by charges of participating in a "fixed" game, is one those who will face Risberg, though he was given a clean bill "Swede."

Tris Speaker, who for a week has been conferring with Cobb attorneys planning to fight charges involving the integrity of both Cobb and himself, is not connected with the new scandal charges.

The list of men summoned before Landis includes five who have been or are now managers of American League clubs. They are Eddie Collins, former manager of the White Sox; Ray Schalk, recently named as Collins's successor; Ty Cobb, who retired from the management of the Detroit Tigers last fall; Clarence Rowland, the American League umpire, who was in charge of the White Sox in 1917; and Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and formerly manager of the Washington Senators.

George Burns, chosen the "most valuable American League player in 1926," also has arranged to come here.

Charges Landis Knew About Deal

Los Angeles, Jan. 4 (AP).—[illegible] Cannon, Milwaukee attorney, who at one time represented baseball players dismissed after the exposure of the so-called White Sox "scandal" of 1919, declared here today that Commissioner K. M. Landis knew in 1922 that the Detroit club of the American League had "thrown" games to Chicago in 1917, as charged recently by "Swede" Risberg, and refused to investigate.

Cannon was attorney for Oscar "Happy" Felsch, Charles "Buck" Weaver, Joe Jackson and Risberg in claims against the Chicago club after their dismissal from baseball. Cannon said he told the baseball commissioner. Weaver later corroborating, that the Detroit club deliberately permitted Chicago to win seven games near the end of the season. Cannon said he asked Charles Comiskey to submit to an examination to determine the status of the White Sox club, but that Comiskey declined.

Hot One

The story is told of two opposing English politicians who met in the parliamentary lobby and smoothed over their differences. But the opposition fangs did not remain in very long. "Why is it that you always heap coals of fire on my head, comrade?" asked the Socialist M. P. "I heap coals of fire on your head because I love the smell of a wood fire," was the Tory retort.—Boston Transcript.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—If there is any doubt as to what Swede Risberg means by "sloughing" a ball game, the dictionary will help. As a verb slough means to cast off as the skin of a serpent. As a noun it has such meanings as a leather bag or a hiccough, so perhaps Swede had in mind "coughing up" or "in the bag."

Washington—Sick kiddies are to have due attention at the children's hospital as a consequence of the great success of a charity ball attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge on the latter's 48th birthday. They watched from a box for half an hour, but took no part in the dancing.

London—A toast to the Prince of Wales by Viscount Byng at a banquet: "Damme sir, we love you for yourself."

Brussels—Crown Prince Leopold and his bride, Astrid of Sweden, must struggle along on a paltry $140,000 a year. Plans to give them more have been declared unconstitutional.

Moscow—Many housewives are dispensing with servants because of the privileges given them by law. Servants must have a month's vacation annually with pay and cannot be fired except for most substantial reasons.

Leipzig—In the opinion of two eminent surgeons, dueling with rapiers is only a form of sport which is less dangerous than boxing. The Supreme court, however, has another view. It sentenced a law student to five years' imprisonment for accidentally killing a chum in a friendly bout.

Albany, N. Y.—Mrs. Florence Knapp, who is temporary boss of boxing in this state, notes that under proper safeguards boxing seems to be well established in the field of sports. The state athletic and racing commissions are under her jurisdiction until her successor as secretary of state is named.

Chicago—A brilliant young preacher here has become an almost insensate mass because of over eating. Bishop Hughes, in warning Methodist ministers against over eating, use of narcotics, melancholy and grouchiness, did not name the gormandizer he described.

FRENCH OFFICIAL IS HIS OWN CHAMBERMAID.

Paris, Jan. 4 (AP).—A cabinet minister in his night shirt, making his own bed and shaking rugs out of the window, was the visual treat afforded pedestrians in the boulevard St. Michel one morning.

Louis Marin, minister of pensions and deputy from the Nancy region, was deserted without notice by his chambermaid. And His Excellency is very particular about keeping his house in good order.

Not so particular about his own garb, Marin usually wears a "vareuse" or blouse similar to those of workmen, his neck adorned with an old-fashioned flowing blue bow tie studded with white polka dots. His shoes are sturdy things made more for the mud of his native Lorraine than for the boulevards of Paris.

Monsieur Marin would rather walk than ride any day.

"I have a government credit of 255,000 francs a year for the upkeep of an automobile," he said. "But I have no car; first, because it is healthier to walk; second, because it helps the government economize. When I really have to attend an important ceremony, I simply hire a classy car for an hour or a day."

POULTRY

GOOD CARE COUNTS WITH HEN FLOCKS

Summarizing a year's reports of 31 Minnesota poultry record flocks in 19 counties, Cora E. Cooke, poultry specialist with the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota, finds that one location is about as good as another in Minnesota for keeping poultry; that there is no one most profitable breed; that improved feeding more than pays for itself in increased returns; that good housing is essential to good returns, and that Minnesota farm flocks are an asset to the farm business.

Also the records seem to show that increased annual net returns can be expected from a high egg production, a low feed cost, and the selling of poultry and eggs to advantage, especially for breeding purposes.

Six breeds are represented in the 31 flocks. The average number of eggs laid per hen was 128 and the average feed cost per hen for the year was $1.95. The average net return per bird was $2.53. In the ten flocks having the highest production, the actual feed cost was $2.04 per hen as compared with a cost of $1.86 in the ten lowest producing flocks. Figured in terms of a dozen eggs, the high-producing flocks did the best with feed costs amounting to only 15.04 cents per dozen eggs, while it was 25 cents a dozen in the low producing flocks. The average was 18 cents a dozen. In other words, it costs more to produce more eggs, but the increased production brings a greater return.

Rooster Needs Special Feeding and Management

The rooster should have special feeding and management so as to keep up his vigor, vitality, constitution and activity, says H. A. Bittenbender, head of the poultry husbandry department at Iowa State college.

"Care must be taken in the selection of roosters, but even after the proper males have been put into the flock, it is entirely possible to ruin the chances of getting a large number of fertile eggs," says Mr. Bittenbender. "First, have the right proportion of females in the flock. Generally we can use the following guide: For Mediterranean breeds, in the early part of the season, one male to 14 females, and as the season advances increase to 25; for American breeds, one male to ten females early in the season and one to 15 later; for Asiatic and English breeds, in most cases it has been found best to use a lesser number of females than of the American breeds."

One good method of managing the rooster is to keep the hens that are not laying in a pen by themselves, and as they come into laying, put them into the breeding pens. In this way it is possible to insure a greater percentage of fertility from the ones that are laying during the earlier part of the season. It is not necessary to have a trap nest in order to do this.

Wintering Turkeys Not a Very Difficult Task

As soon as the turkeys, which have been fed for Christmas holidays, have been marketed the ration which was used during the fattening period, no doubt consisting largely of corn, may be reduced.

A breeding flock should be brought through the winter in good flesh and care should be taken not to have excess fat. Corn is a good winter food, but it is not considered best to make more than one-third of ration corn. A mixture of corn, wheat and oats in equal parts will serve as the main part of the ration.

As long as it is possible for the turkeys to range through the woods and over the field one feeding a day is sufficient. When the fields become covered with snow it may be necessary to increase the grain feeding. Green food is very essential and can be supplied in the form of carrots, turnips, cabbage, beets, etc. Meat scraps, sour milk, fresh ground bone and oyster shell will supply food which is very essential.

Take care of the flock this winter, and next year you will be rewarded for your efforts and work.

Have Plenty of Nests

Every poultry house should be equipped with plenty of nests so that each hen may have an opportunity to have the sole use of a nest when she wants to lay. One nest for each two hens is not too many, but two to five hens will do pretty well. Nests should be about 12 inches by 14 inches, and at least 12 inches deep. The opening should be about 8 inches wide and 9 inches deep. This will allow for enough straw in the bottom to make a soft nest.

White Orpington Breed

The White Orpington is one of the large breeds of chickens. The males should weigh 10 pounds and the adult hens around 8 pounds. They are fairly good layers the first year and lay a good-sized brown egg. Of course, the laying is more a matter of feed, care and breeding than it is of the breed. They are good mothers. Hens after their first laying year are likely to be broody a great deal and do not lay as well. For this reason pullets are favored for laying.

The Web of Life

The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together; our virtues would be proud if our faults whipped them not; and our crimes would despair if they were not cherished by our virtues.—Shakespeare.
